ESKEW BROS, Machinists, REPRESENT INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

Are You Advancing?

PROGRESS means to make improvement--to advance. For a farmer it means the use of any machine that will increase crops with the least work. When you progress you are striving for easier methods of doing things, better ways of living, and the attainment of all improvements which will help you to live comfortably so that you can enjoy your work, and at the same time relish the free, fresh air and sunshine. Are you doing it? Do you progress?

"A little bit
the best
Mower that ever went into the field"

THE NEW
WALTER A. WOOD

THE ADMIRAL

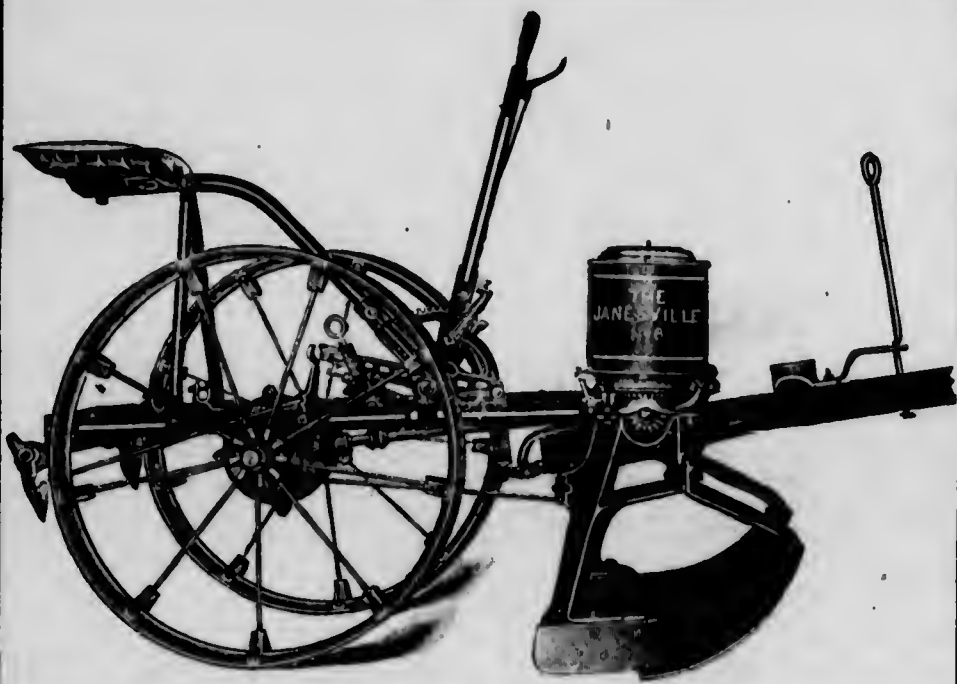

The Admiral is the latest Walter A. Wood Mower. In it is concentrated their fifty-seven year experience. It possesses all the peculiar features of construction that have made Walter A. Wood Mowers world-famous. Its new features make it even more valuable to the farmer. The following statement of a prominent Illinois dealer indicates the popularity of the Admiral and suggests the wisdom of investigation.

"The Admiral is just a little bit the best Mower that ever went into the field. Farmers come in every day telling what a wonderful machine it is. We would not buy anything else."

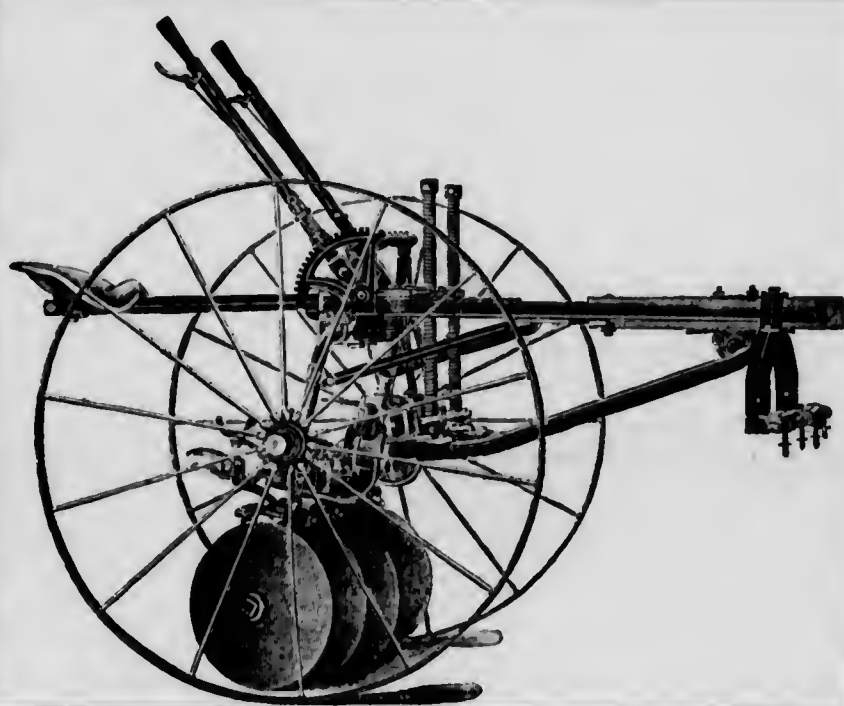

We want to show this up-to-date Mower to every farmer in this locality. No one who wants to keep posted on the newest in farm machinery will neglect to investigate the Admiral. It will surprise and delight you.

Do You Believe In Progress?

MEN who progress are men who use McCormick or Walter A. Wood's up-to-date binders, hay-rakes, mowers hay-tedders, reapers, harrows, cultivators, planters and etc. Are you up to date? Are you using modern farm machines? Look at your equipment Are't some of your machines pretty well worn? Shouldn't you replace them? There is no line of farm machines superior to our line. These machines are used in every civilized country in the world.

McCormick and Walter A. Wood machines are recommended by men who use them, they could have no better recommendation than this. It is to your interest to use this line as they are best and give the least trouble in repairs, as we carry a full line at our shop. Get our prices and see our machines before you buy. We take pleasure in showing them.

SPLENDID PROGRESS

MADE IN ROAD BUILDING.

Full List Of All Subscriptions

All advances in civilization are brought about by either moral or physical reforms. The building of good roads is a physical reform. It is said that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" and a companion couplet reads "Good roads begets good morals". These couplets are not found in the Bible but they certainly breathe the spirit of sacred inspiration.

The building and maintenance of good roads in any community, County or State is conclusive evidence of a well balanced public mind, a reasonable desire for comfort, and a keen appreciation of their value in dollars and cents. The earliest systematic effort at road making is accredited to the Carthaginians and was begun for the purposes of war and the conquest of distant countries. 55 years before Christ, Julius Caesar built a road from London to New Castle-on-Tyne and this road is one of the best in all England and is used to-day. The Romans were the greatest road makers the world ever saw and they conquered the world. English roads are the best on the continent and one of their most celebrated road makers was Macadam, a scotchman, whose success at road building founded on through drainage.

The most celebrated road in all history is the Appian way leading from Rome Italy to the coast. It was begun by Appius Claudius Cretus 312 years before Christ was born, and was built of hexagonal, or six sided blocks, principally of lava, and carefully laid with cement. This is a model highway to this day.

The Apostle Paul journeyed to Rome over this road some 350 years later and as soon as he struck this remarkable piece of engineering he "Thanked God and took courage". We understand of course, from the text that the sight of the brethren caused the exclamation, and yet Paul had traveled a tempestuous route, buffeted by the wind and waves, assaulted by robbers, in peril on land and sea, and is it too much to presume that when this old soldier of the cross planted his feet on the solid rock of Appius and felt a foundation under his feet like unto the foundation of the religion he preached, that part of his thanks to God was for good roads.

Millions of men since Pauls time have thanked God for good roads and thousands in Crittenden County will in the future do likewise, and whether or not this future is far distant or close at hand depends on the people of the county.

Good roads are not an iridescent dream merely to be talked about and cast aside when the novelty of the thing wears away. Good roads are a reality. We are just as certain to have good roads all over this county as the judgment day is certain to come; but who wants to wait until the judgment for the realization of good roads? What good will it do our generation to know there will be 500 miles or more of good roads in Crittenden County 100 years from now. Good roads today interest this generation.

There is not a doubt in the world but what we can have good roads if we will "Aye theres the rub" if we will. If our people will to have good roads we will have them. Good roads are an investment not an expense. If a farmer puts a $500.00 tobacco barn on his farm, is it lost? No, it is an investment and he promptly adds that much to the value of his farm. $100,000.00 spent on good roads in Crittenden County will add $200,000.00 to the value of the farms of this county.

The Crittenden Record-Press is deeply interested in this subject and will do everything in its power to help this work along, and particularly urges each and every one to put his shoulder to the wheel and let us have one piece of good road as a starter in this county. Let it be as good as can be constructed and the we will have a pattern for the inspection of all the people. Precept and preaching are good but example is the best of all teaching.

The Record-Press is happy to announce that we have $2,070.00 in cash subscribed to date and 367 days work for team and one man. This latter is worth $1.101, which added to the cash makes $3,171.00.

We must have $1,200.00 more. We have to have this to guarantee the fiscal court in its share of the work which is the grading and building. This must and will be raised by May 15th on which day we will have a good roads meeting and elect some non-salaried officers. Everyone is invited to attend this meeting. All subscriptions to date follow:

CARNAHAN BROS. & DODGE.

THE TURN IN THE LANE.

(By M. H. Lockyear.)

When winter is past and springtime has come,
When song birds are happy and bees start to hum,
When the bloom on the clover bears its sweetest perfume,
And the roses get red in the middle of June,
Oh! it's then I go back to the turn in the lane,
And live over the joys of my childhood again.

I can see the old house, as it stood on the hill,
The creek through the meadow, the old water mill;
The long country road with its dust or its mud,
The old crooked path as it wound through the wood;
The barefooted boys as they played hide and seek,
In the willows which fringed both sides of the creek.

I go out to the field where the green waving grain
Is fanned by the breezes and fed by the rain,
And its waves rise and fall as if bowing to me,
As they frolic and toss like the billowy sea.
I visit the orchard with its blossoms so fair,
The perfume of which fills the soft summer air.

But time has changed the old country place,
Like the change that has come to my once youthful face.
The hillside is furrowed and wearing away,
And the walls of the house have begun to decay.
I pause to reflect as this story is told,
That visions of youth are still ours when we're old.

The friends we loved then are the friends we love now,
Though grey be their hair and wrinkled their brow;
The teachers we had are instructing us still,
For lessons they taught are controlling our will.

The years that are past their wonders have wrought,
While the lessons of youth are never forgot.
So to-day I go back to the turn in the lane,
And live over the joys of my childhood again.
I can see the old house as it stood on the hill,
The creek through the meadow, the old water mill,
The long country road with its dust or its mud,
The old crooked path as it wound through the wood;
The barefooted boys as they played hide and seek,
In the willows which fringed both sides of the creek.

OPENS CAMPAIGN

Congressman Ollie M. James
Delivers Opening Address
at Nicholasville

LARGE CROWD HEARS ORATOR

Address Was in Interest of His Candidacy For the United States Senatorship in Race Against Senator Paynter.

Nicholasville, Ky.—Congressman Ollie M. James, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senate against Senator T. H. Paynter, opened his campaign in this city Monday. The largest crowd in the history of Jessamine county was in town to hear the big orator of Western Kentucky. After an introduction by Senator B. M. Arnett, Mr. James spoke as follows:

Senator Paynter states that he did not undertake to take any action relative to influencing members of the State Executive Committee about calling a primary or taking any action relative to selecting nominees for the United States Senate. He says he thought any action they should take would be with a view of conserving the best interests of the party. As to whether he undertook any action or not, it is a fact well known to the people of Kentucky that every close personal friend of his, together with the Democrats from the district in which he lives or did live, voted against including the race in the primary, and after a primary had been ordered for all State officers the United States Senatorship was excluded from the primary in direct violation of Democratic doctrine and platform promises for almost a quarter of a century.

The Senator still sat silent as he says, I presume still believing, "that any action taken would be with a view to conserving the best interests of his party." And, yet, he must have known, and I charge that he did know, that such action as this was reactionary and undemocratic and was stabbing Democratic hopes to the very heart. And, yet, he remained silent, still believing, as he tells us, that the action the committee should take would be to best "conserve the interests of the party." Senator Paynter has never favored a primary election, and to-day is dragged unwillingly before the proud electorate of the Commonwealth to submit his claims for their confidence and approval and his candidacy to their arbitrament. Senator Paynter was not the choice of the people of Kentucky when he was elected to the Senate; he is not the choice of the people of Kentucky now. I believe I am well within the bounds of reason and truth when I say that Senator Paynter could not have polled, when he was elected to the Senate, more than one vote out of five in Kentucky against Senator Blackburn.

But the Senator dodges the proposition when he states it is unnecessary to state what his preference was as to the nomination of the candidates for state officers and the United States Senate. Senator, I am no mind reader, but I know your preference as the people of Kentucky know what it is. There was a time when it was necessary for you to act. When Democratic platforms were being trampled upon and Democratic issues were imperilled you remained silent.

I was told quite frequently at Louisville, when the committee met the time before the last, that the primary bill was not in proper form and that it must be absolutely legally drawn because Senator Paynter intended to institute a suit in the courts enjoining the holding of the senatorial primary; that it would not be done by him openly, but by some other person who really would be acting in his interest and that it would be said, of course, that Senator Paynter knew nothing about it; that a primary was entirely satisfactory to him.

My Record.
Senator Paynter says in his card of announcement that I am a member of a great committee of the House and the people of the state can not afford to spare my services from the House; and that I will still remain a member of the House during his term as senator. The Senator doubtless loses sight of the fact that the term of congress for which I am elected expires at the same time that the senatorial office which he now holds expires and of course the statement that I would remain a member of Congress is untrue and made by the Senator either for the purpose of deceiving the people of Kentucky or without the knowledge of the fact that a member of congress is only elected for two years. It is indeed, fellow citizens, gratifying in the extreme to know that after a service of eight years in the House in trying times, when greed and oppression were battering at the very entrance, when loaves, great and corrupt, were crowding every hall, when measures affecting the public interests were many and complex, that my opponent can not find one flaw in my record, and was forced to urge as a reason why I should not be sent to the senate that I had proved too faithful in the House. No greater tribute could he pay me, no greater compliment could I seek than the admission that the eye of the critic and the enemy could find no fault and he was forced to this admission. And yet this argument simply means that to prove worthy of a trust is to be denied greater trust; to prove capable is not to be promoted, and to prove faithful is not to find reward.

People of Kentucky can well say, "We want the services of such a man who has risen so high and holds such a prominent position in the ranks of his party to act for the whole state; for the good of the rest of the state why circumscribe the services of such a man to the narrow limits of a single district, why not let such good services come to all Kentucky alike?" The argument the Senator makes that because a member of congress has been capable and worthy and prominent in the house, he should be kept there, would have kept Henry Clay out of the senate, would have kept James K. Polk in the house, would have kept John J. Crittenden representing a district, would have kept John G. Carlisle acting for the Sixth Kentucky district, would have kept John C. Breckinridge in the house and Joseph C. S. Blackburn representing the Ashland district. While the Senator addresses this argument to the people of the whole state, it is the only one, in my judgment, by which the Senator could have ever been elected to the Senate, and I presume for that reason it is so dear to him. While my own district might demand that I should remain in the house, yet it delights me beyond expression to know that I am supported by the Democrats of that great district as no other candidate presented by it has been within my knowledge. They are unselfish enough, they are generous enough, support me in this ambition to represent the whole Commonwealth, including themselves, in the United States senate.

A STIRRING TALE OF LOVE AND BUSINESS.

Joe Gets Some Advice.

A week rolled away, and Miss Inogene Moss—She was free, of course, from her bald-headed boss—Had been busy assisting in household affairs, Making pies, sweeping floors and the dusting of chasrs.

Joseph, too, had been busy—still lifting up hods—He had almost forgotten he'd ever hopp'd clods—So still up went the bricks to the man at the top, With never a shirk and with scarcely a stop.

One ev'ning, however, when Joe had quit work—For the man at the top had cried, "Time is up Turk!" And had started for home, as was always his plan, He was met on the way by the bald headed man.

"Let me speak to you, Turk, just a moment," he said; I have heard that you've made up your mind soon to wed, Now, of course I can't blame you, 'tis better, I own, As the Bible has said, than to live all alone.

"You've a good paying job, that of lifting up hods—I'm agreeing with you, it beats hopping the clods—And I'd like well to see you thus settled in life In a nice, happy home with a sweet loving wife.

We are authorized to announce Thomas S. Rhea, of Logan county as a candidate for treasurer, of the state of Kentucky, subject to the action of the democratic primary, to be held July 1 1911.

Three weeks of Congress have emphasized the unusual spectacle of a Republican president reaching across the party chasm for the help his own followers denied him.

Reciprocity was ever a favorite chant with the republicans high priests, since the days of James G. Blaine. It gave a ring of "sweetness and light" to the party platforms. The men who pulled the wires were glad enough to swap platform planks freely, as long as the high-brows kept their off the choice of delegates.

Reciprocity was a friendless waif in the crowd that used to control Congress. They had a special pigeon hole made with a false bottom for its interment. And now come the wicked Democrats, who never made any particular virtue of reciprocity. But singularly enough, they alone can be depended on to pass it. Its like the man in the Bible who said he would go and did not, and the man who said he wouldn't go but he did.

Protecting home industries really rests on just the same basis as maintaining the industries of one's own town. Most of us believe in buying at home, even if it costs us a little more. Some of us would pay a good size tax if we could thereby get more industries here.

But few of us would pay any such tax, unless we had every opportunity to scrutinize the inside figures of the deal, and to see whether we had to pay twice as much as necessary, and if the returns were enough to compensate for the burdens we had to bear.

Furthermore, if any such tax were laid on us indefinitely for the support of such an industry, we would be questioning whether it was an economical investment.

In the national field, the man who receive these subsidies have been permitted to name their own figures to friendly receptive committees. When the Consumer, the long suffering fellow who had to pay, rose to have an itemized bill read aloud in public meetings, he was promptly hushed down as out of order.

Some of the merchants who hold to the older business methods do not quite realize how modern trade has abandoned its former passive attitude.

Our older men will recall a time when buyers of manufactured goods used to visit the factories to make their purchases. Manufacturing then was pretty well concentrated in the Eastern states, and long and difficult journeys were taken to see the goods personally.

A manufacturer of those days would have laughed at the idea that he spent his good money in sending out salesmen on costly junketing to jolly up the retailers. He was sure of a certain trade by sitting in his tracks and waiting for the business to come to his door.

Today the buyers sit down in their stores and wait for the manufacturers to send salesmen to see them, and manufacturers that fail to do this lose their trade.

But a remnant of retailers still think they can do business on the old time principle of letting trade come to you. The public however, assumes that the man who thus fails to play the game of merchandising lacks confidence in his goods, since he is not willing to pay the ordinary expenses of selling them.

The newspaper advertisement serves with marvelous efficiency as the retailer's traveling salesman. It tells his story to thousands of readers in the time a salesman would spend talking to one customer.

Watch a train load of people when the new periodicals are brought in. Two out of three turn first to the advertising. They read the stories and articles a little afterward, and finally turn to the advertising again. If you could enter the homes when the local newspaper is distributed, you would find a similar searching scrutiny of the store news.

The reason is obvious. The general news relates to things not directly connected with the personal interest of the reader. The advertising talks about one's every day interests, like clothing and house furnishings and personal belongings.

In appeals to the ever present desire to live comfortably and attractively, and to reduce the cost of living. How can people help reading them.

TOBACCO TIDINGS.

The following article from the Morganfield Post is so cheering I reproduce headlines and all:

FINE PROGRESS IS BEING MADE.

Now Believed That There Will Be More Tobacco Pooled in This County Than Ever Herebefore—Union County Farmers Propose to Keep From Under Heel of Tobacco Trust.

"While it is pretty early in the season to venture a prediction, yet from the reports that are now prevalent the tobacco pool in Union county will be greater than known in any previous year. The pooling papers have not yet been out a great while, but it is understood there is less hesitation on the part of the farmer in signing up than in previous years.

"This shows that the farmers of this county do not expect to again place themselves beneath the mighty heel of the tobacco trust. The association is, of course, not perfect, and can not be expected to be. Some members find fault with it, but when they think of what will happen to the tobacco growers if the association should die—when they recall how merciless the tobacco trust was a few years ago when it bought up fine crops of tobacco at an average of 3 cents a pound, and how the farmer was powerless to help himself, he again becomes proud of the great organization of farmers despite the fact that there are some things about it he does not like. No big organization could be formed and conducted in a way that would be satisfactory to every one. "Take this from us. The tobacco trust is a corporation conducted to make every dollar possible for its stockholders, many of whom live in foreign countries. This concern is going to buy tobacco just as low as it can be bought. This tobacco trust is in control of the market. If the farmer is not in position to say what his tobacco is worth, the trust will name the price, and do you think that price would be a good one? If you believe the tobacco trust will get in sympathy with the farmer and pay him a big price for his tobacco when it does not have to do it, you'd better get it out of your head right now and get your tobacco into the pool. If you do not like the association, pool as a business proposition. It is a financial proposition. It means dollars to you. It means an education and comforts for your children instead of million-dollar residences and luxurious living for the members of the tobacco trust. With the association you name the price. Without the association the tobacco trust will name it. Which shall it be?"—Henderson Clearer.

By James N. Banks.

The Hustler reports an enthusiastic meeting at Madisonville last Saturday, as follows:

The farmers who are heart and soul in the upholding of the Stemming District Association and who believe in the ultimate victory against the trusts, were encouraged by the large crowd of Hopkins county farmers that gathered at the court house Saturday afternoon to discuss and hear discussed the situation as it now stands and as it affects the farmer. There is little doubt now but that the farmers of this county will again be one of the counties to pool this year's tobacco crop.

"W. W. Wilson presided at the meeting and the speakers were given close attention.

"General Manager William Elliot, of Henderson, was present and made a statement of the operations of the Association and showed that the expense of handling the immense crop by the association was less than $2.00 on the $100., not $2.00 on the hundred pounds of tobacco, as many seemed to think.

E. S. Davenport, of Muhlenberg county, made an excellent talk in which he reviewed the conditions existing prior to the association and since. He showed that the price of tobacco had been raised double in price by the Association.

"He showed that tobacco had dropped one-half since the Burley pool failed for last year.

"He said it was the policy of the association men to stand true to their colors, but they are tired of bearing the burden in order to give the outsider a top price, and if the outsider did not wish to come in, the pool would be dissolved here and then, he said, the outsider would see the folly of remaining out, just as the outsider did in the Burley district. "Louis Hancock made a short talk explaining several details of the work."

Ministers And Members Meeting.

The annual meeting of Baptist, of the Ohio River Association, met with Caldwell Spring church. The body organized by electing Bro. P. A. Clark, of Pinkneyville, moderator; R. A. LaRue, Clerk. The program of the meeting was taken up after enrollment of members. The discussions were edifying and brotherly. Bro. LaRue contended earnestly for woman's place in church work as subjective, unofficial, womanly. Bro. Cannon sent an able, helpful paper on "The Ideal Sabbath School." Bro. Pierce showed clearly from the scriptures that pastors should not have charge of more than one church. So we called ourselves "supplies." The sermons by Bros. Gibbs and Kinsolving were characteristic of the men and greatly enjoyed by the large congregation. Bro. Gregston discussed the practicability of country churches having every Sunday preaching. Practical because scriptural. Bro. McNeeley opened discussion on "Is the annual protracted meeting best for our churches?" Most of the speakers pointed out objections to them. Bro. Wells opened discussion on "Is the mourners' bench scriptural?"

Lightning striking a tree near the church, and killing a mule, brought the meeting to an exciting close, and rain prevented the usual meeting on Sunday, — a "striking" close.

The entertainment of the Caldwell Springs people was delightful and abundant.

The Annual meeting of the Kentucky State Dental Association, to be held in Owensboro, May 23-24-25, Promises to be of more than usual interest to the dentists of this and neighboring States on account of the numerous new methods and appliances which will be exhibited there.

Dentistry, unlike many professions, cannot be learned altogether from books and magazines, and consequently, it is almost obligatory for the progressive dentist to attend these meetings. Several dentists from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois will give clinics; in fact everything indicates that this will be the largest and best meeting ever held in Kentucky.

All ethical members of the profession are invited to attend this meeting.

In regard to skin diseases medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply.

A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT. A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription, penetrates to the disease germs and destroys it, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 25-cent trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

Brush, armed with a repeating shot gun, has barricaded his home and announced he will kill every man who approaches within 100 ft of it. With Brush in his impregnable citadel is his widowed mother, seventy years old, whom he dominates until she fears to show and who leaves the house only to visit the well, a few feet from the door, for water. The Sheriff has established a patrol about the Brush premises.

"I Am Glad"

writes Mrs. Ethel Newlin, of Liberty Center, Ind., "that I began to take Cardui, for it has cured me, and I will never forget it. I cannot praise Cardui too highly for what it did for me.
